

MANAGEMENT

BACHELOR DEGREE

Management, as social science, must develop a perspective of interdisciplinary knowledge and of science evolution. In the process of decision making, the key of success lies in the capacity of anticipation of future events. People with the responsibility to decide come across in a daily basis with the challenge to give answers to change, in a world where the nets of interconnections are established and broken, at an unprecedented rhythm. It is in this scenario of decisions taken in an atmosphere of uncertainty and risk, but whose instrumental models are aimed to support, that this course was built
